

Tiffany L. Israel, MSSW

Community Navigator, Vanderbilt Institute of Clinical and Translational Research

Co-Course Director, Vanderbilt University School of Medicine

Service Lead, Community Engagement Studios,
Recruitment Innovation Center

Ms. Israel is the co-developer of the Community Engagement Studio model and Co-Director for the Vanderbilt University Medical School Community Health Course. She currently serves as a Research Services Consultant for the NIH Recruitment Innovation Center advising on multi-site clinical trials and manages the Community-Based Recruitment Initiative of the CDC VIEW study focused on monitoring COVID19 transmission. Her research interests include the study of stakeholder engagement to enhance the patient-centeredness of healthcare and research and the inclusion of communities that have been historically excluded. Her published work examines methods to utilize community engagement and participatory methods to enhance and create equity in research. Ms. Israel has a Master of Science in Social Work and over 25 years of experience working with and learning from diverse communities across the country to create more just systems.