

Rosalia Guerrero, MBA, CHWI

Director, Vulnerable Populations, Texas Epidemic Public Health Institute , University of Texas Health
Adjunct Faculty, Texas Southern University, College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences

Rosalia Guerrero has worked with community health workers for over 20 years throughout the state of Texas including urban, rural, and border communities. She currently serves as Director of Vulnerable Populations for the Texas Epidemic Public Health Institute (TEPHI) at the UTHealth, School of Public Health (UTSPH) in Houston and adjunct faculty at Texas Southern University, College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences. Rosalia's interests focus on the expanding role of CHWs and their integration into multidisciplinary healthcare teams. Rosalia has a B.S. in Psychology and Pre-Medicine from Texas A&M, College Station, an MBA from University of Houston Downtown, and is currently pursuing her DrPH from UTSPH.